Williamson County and Cities Health District Presents the 7th Annual School and Public Health Nurses Conference

August 31, 2010 (Williamson County) –

Williamson County and Cities Health District (WCCHD) in partnership with Austin Community College of Nursing, Georgetown Independent School District (ISD), Hutto ISD, Round Rock ISD, and Taylor ISD is holding its seventh annual Williamson County School and Public Health Nurses Conference.

School and public health nurses from throughout the county have been invited to the August 18, 2010 event being held at the Hutto ISD Performing Arts Center, located at 101 FM 685 in Hutto.

This event will provide nurses with information regarding adolescent heart screening, concussion management, “the choking game”, resources for children with special health care needs, and immunizations.

In addition to the topics presented by the speakers, conference participants also look forward to networking with conference exhibitors and nurses from other school districts and the public health department.
